Due to the nature of film development, all orders are final. Midwest Image Works cannot tell if a roll of film is going to be blank or damaged before the development process begins.

Film storage conditions play a large part in the quality of your scans and developed negatives. Rolls should be developed as soon as possible after exposure and should not be stored in areas of high humidity or heat over 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

Important Things to Know...

1. Turnaround Time: While we strive to process your film in a timely manner, please note that turnaround times may vary based on the type of film, order volume, and other factors. We will notify you of any significant delays

2. Film Condition: By submitting your film, you acknowledge that the condition of the film upon receipt is beyond our control. We take great care in processing and handling all films, but we are not responsible for any pre-existing damage, defects, or issues with the film itself (such as expired, damaged, or improperly stored film).

3. Lab Quality and Results: All film processing is done according to industry standards, but please note that results may vary based on the type, age, and storage conditions of the film. We do not guarantee specific results, such as color accuracy or exposure quality, especially for expired or improperly stored film.

~~4. ECN-2 Film Processing: Please note that ECN-2 film requires the Cine Film Processing addition for proper development. If ECN-2 film is submitted without this addition being purchased, your film will be returned to you in whatever condition it is in at the time this is realized. As a result, the film will likely be unable to be developed and may be irreparably damaged or rendered unusable. No refund will be issued in this case. It is your responsibility to ensure the correct processing option is selected when placing your order.~~

5. Refunds: Due to the nature of film processing, we do not offer refunds for processed film, except in cases of clear lab error, such as film damage during processing.

6. Privacy and Data Use: We respect your privacy. Any personal information you provide will only be used for processing your order and will not be shared with third parties without your consent.
